

ORCOM

Oral Communication in Context

Grade 12, Semester 1 study outline

A summary of section headings and key terms, made by students for revision. It is not the handout and does not replace it.

01. Communication-Its Nature and Process

1. Communication is a message understood

Unless a message is understood, we cannot say that communication has taken place.

2. Communication is a social interaction through messages

Think of someone telling you, "It is very warm today." In this case, we are communicating what 'we

2. The sender sends the signals (speaks) through a channel (such as air)

4. The receiver hears the signals using the ears

5. The receiver converts (or decodes) the signals into thoughts

6. The receiver sends feedback by becoming the sender

Needless to say, the communication process does not proceed as simply as discussed in numbers 1 to

6. Rather, the process happens in a rapid back-and-forth but still orderly way

As the communication transaction continues, the sender and receiver may exchange roles until

Key terms

Communication - process of giving and receiving information between a human source and a human

Unless a message - understood, we cannot say that communication has taken place

02. Communication-Its Elements and Types

1. Senders

- They convey messages by converting their thoughts into symbols or observable signals such as words. (This is

2. Receivers

- They hear the signals and convert the symbols into their thoughts. (This is called decoding, deciphering, or

3. Messages

- These are the ideas or thoughts that are transmitted from sender to receiver.

4. Verbal and Nonverbal Symbols

- Symbols are observable signals transmitted from sender to receiver and it can come in any observable form.

5. Channels

- It refers to the medium through which the message is sent. It connects the sender and the receiver.

6. Feedback

- It refers to the message transmitted by the receiver in response to the message of the speaker.

1. Intrapersonal

- It may involve deliberation, where you think about your decisions or possible courses of action.

2. Interpersonal

- It involves talking to one or a limited number of people. (This requires you to adjust your speech to suit

3. Public

- It involves communicating to a wide group of people with very varied traits, background, interests, and

Key terms

Dyad - It - interpersonal communication between two people. In this context, the possibility of clarification and

Small group - It - interpersonal communication between three or more people. In this context, the possibility

03. Communication Models (Part 1)

5. Destination - It is the person (or thing) for whom the message is intended

Note: The model clearly deals with external noises only, which affect the messages or signals from external

04. Communication Models (Part 2)

1. The Linear, Conduit model

2. The Circular, Dialogic model

- It gives a more active role for the receiver.

3. The Feedback, Interaction model

- It tries to think of messages beyond what is intentionally given by the sender. That is, all behavior

4. The self-regulatory model

- It focuses on what the senders and receivers get from the environment.

Key terms

Communication - essential to human life. Without it, we can't function properly

05. Communication Breakdown

1. Physical Barriers

- These are the natural or environmental conditions that act as a barrier in communication, in sending the

2. Psychological Barriers

- These refer to social and personal issues of a speaker in communicating with others.

3. Cultural Barriers

- These pertain to communication problems encountered by people regarding their intrinsic values,

4. Linguistic Barriers

- These pertain to conflicts concerning language and word meanings.

1. External Noises

- These are the "sight, sound, and other stimuli that draw people's attention away from intended

2. Internal noises

- These are the "thoughts and feelings that interfere with meaning."

3. Semantic noises

- These are the "alternate meanings aroused by a speaker's symbols."

Key terms

Communication - process of exchanging thoughts, ideas, and opinions in order to connect with other people. Its

06. Various Strategies to Avoid Communication Breakdown

1. Keep Focused

- One way of being focused is to put in mind the purpose of communication. As a speaker, identify

2. Speak Intelligibly

- Speaking intelligibly or clearly means using the appropriate speaking volume, pitch rate, proper

3. Listen with your Ears and Eyes

- Pay attention to verbal and non-verbal messages. Effective communication depends on what people

4. Minimize Distractions

- Look for a place where you can minimize distractions or noise, like closed areas, empty rooms, or

5. Be Specific

- Use simple and concise words as much as possible in delivering a message. Being specific means

6. Do not Jump to Conclusions

- Before you give your comments and judgment, be sure that you have listened attentively to the

A. Completeness

- It is important to the whole communication process. The speaker should include everything that the

B. Conciseness

- The message should be direct or straight to the point and should be expressed in the least possible

C. Consideration

- In order to be effective, the speaker should give high regard and courtesy to the audience's background

D. Concreteness

- Effective communication is backed up by facts, figures, and real-life examples or situations. This will

E. Courtesy

- The speaker can show respect to his/her receivers through understanding their culture, values, and

F. Clearness

- It implies the use of simple and specific words to express ideas. When the speaker focuses on specific

G. Correctness

- Avoiding mistakes in grammar helps to boost the credibility and effectiveness of the message, and at the
-

07. Functions of Communication

1. Regulation/Control

Communication can be used to control the behavior of human beings. It can be used to regulate the

2. Social Interaction

Communication can be used to produce social interaction. In their daily course of living, human beings

3. Motivation

As a function of communication, it refers to a person using language to express desires, needs, wants,

4. Information

Communication can be used for giving and getting information.

5. Emotional Expression

Humans always need to express their emotions both verbally and nonverbally. Emotions are a central

Key terms

Whether it - love, fear, anger, joy, hope, or any other emotion, humans need to let them out, otherwise

08. Verbal and Nonverbal Communication

1. Appropriateness

It pertains to the use of a suitable language form applicable to the nature of the event or context of

2. Brevity

Speakers frequently opt to use simple and precise words in delivering their message.

3. Clarity

Clarity refers to using simple yet exact words that directly express your thoughts and emotions. It

4. Ethics

Ethics pertains to moral standards that need to be considered when delivering a message. The

5. Vividness

Vividness refers to words that make the conversation or exchange of information lively and vibrant.

1. Bodily Kinesthetic

2. Attitude and/or Behavior to specific situations

3. Manner of Dressing

4. Tone of Voice

Key terms

Clarity - using simple yet exact words that directly express your thoughts and emotions. It

Vividness - words that make the conversation or exchange of information lively and vibrant

09. Types of Speech Context

1. Intrapersonal

This refers to a type of communication that is focused on one person, where the speaker acts both as

2. Interpersonal

We also discussed in our previous lesson that interpersonal communication involves talking to one or a

10. Types of Speeches

I. Types of Speech According to Purpose

There are three focal types of speeches: informative, persuasive, and entertainment speeches.

A. Informative or Expository Speech

- It is mainly performed for the purpose of educating the audience on new or relevant pieces of

3. Speeches About Concepts - are about ideas, philosophies, hypotheses, arguments, etc

4. Speeches About Processes are about how something is made, how something is done, or how

> How to administer the final exam for the blind

B. Persuasive Speech -

- It is given solely for the purpose of convincing the audience to agree with the speaker's opinion on a

1. Those that deal with questions of fact

- Does President Duterte love to kill drug lords?

2. Those that deal with questions of value

- Do people have the right to choose to die with dignity?

3. Those that deal with questions of policy

- Should human beings be allowed to use other animals as objects of sport and entertainment?

C. Entertainment Speech

- It aims to share laughter and enjoyment to the audience through witty and humorous lines.

II. Types of Speech According to Delivery

A. Manuscript Speech

- It is the word-for-word iteration of a written message using visual aids.

B. Memorized Speech

- It is the rote recitation of a written message that the speaker has committed to memory.

C. Extemporaneous Speech

-Presentation of a carefully planned and rehearsed speech, spoken in a conversational manner using brief

C. Impromptu speech

- It is the presentation of a short message without advance preparation and is for people

Key terms

Once you - requested to say something, pause for a moment to plan in your head what to

11. Types of Speech Styles

1. Intimate

- This style is used between people who have very close relationships. They share a lot of experiences

2. Casual

- It is an informal communication between groups and peers who have something to share and have

3. Consultative

- It is used in semi-formal and standard communication.

4. Formal

- It is called upon when speaking in formal settings no matter how the participants are related to each

5. Frozen

- It is the most formal communicative style that is usually used during solemn ceremonies and events.

12. Types of Speech Act

1. Locutionary Act

- This is simply the speaking part of the speech act.

2. Illocutionary Act

- This is the acting part of the speech act - the very action done by saying something.

3. Perlocutionary Act

- It refers to the consequent effect of what was said. This is based on the particular context in which the

1. Assertive - Saying something you believe is true

- suggesting, putting forward, swearing, boasting and concluding

2. Directive - Asking or telling someone to do something

- asking, ordering, requesting, inviting, advising, and begging.

3. Commissive - You are promising or committing to do something in the future

- "From this moment on, I will love you and honor you for the rest of my life."

4. Expressive - You are showing your feelings or emotions

- thanking, apologizing, welcoming and deploring

5. Declarative - You are making something happen just by saying it

- blessing, firing, baptizing, bidding, passing a sentence, and excommunicating

Key terms

- Speech acts - performed when a person offers an apology, greeting, request, complaint, invitation
-

13. Types of Communicative Strategies

1. Nomination

- At the start of a discussion or speech, the topic must be identified or nominated.

2. Restriction

- A speaker must restrict the topic of discussion to make it specific enough to be manageable.

3. Turn-taking

- It pertains to the process by which people decide who takes the conversational floor.

4. Topic Control

- Topic control covers how procedural formality or informality affects the development of topic in

5. Topic Shifting

- Topic shifting involves moving from one topic to another.

6. Repair

- Repair is the self-righting mechanism in any social interaction (Schegloff et.al, 1977).

7. Termination

- Termination refers to the conversation participants' close-initiating expressions that end a topic in a

Key terms

- Engaging in a conversation - not just a simple process of talking and listening
-

14. Principles of Effective Speech Writing

1. AUDIENCE PROFILE

- Knowing the audience, specifically their general age, gender, educational level, religion, language,

2. LOGICAL ORGANIZATION

- The logical organization or arrangement of thoughts when it comes to speech writing can be defined as

A. Introduction

- It is generally only 10 to 15 percent of the time the speaker spends speaking.

B. Body

- The body of the speech is the core part of the speech that addresses the main ideas and

1. Problem-Solution Order - It explains the problem and suggests a possible solution

6. Causal Order - It involves a discussion of both cause and effect of an issue

C. Conclusion

- It functions as the summarizer of the entire speech.

3. DURATION

- No matter how long the speech is, always divide it into five parts: an introduction, the body and a

4. WORD CHOICE

- There are a lot of vocabularies available to describe one's idea. However, the speaker should carefully

5. GRAMMATICAL CORRECTNESS

- It is important to use correct grammar to prevent misunderstanding and misinterpretation between you

Key terms

Jargons - specific words or phrases used by a certain individual or group which are difficult for others to

15. Principles of Effective Speech Delivery

1. Articulation

- This refers to properly and appropriately pronouncing the words, phrases, and sentences in a given

2. Modulation

- It refers to how the speaker controls his or her voice and the rhythm employed in uttering the words of

3. Stage presence

- It refers to the speaker's ability to get and secure the audience's interest in listening to him/her through

4. Gestures

- To effectively communicate emotions and enthusiasm while speaking, the speaker must use emphatic

5. Facial expressions

- They are essential in setting the emotional tone for a speech.

6. Movements

- Movement from the waist down should be decisively used to emphasize a point or as a transition during

7. Rapport

You have everything in concordance or harmony.

Key terms

Effective speaking - being able to say what you need to say in a manner that it is heard and acted upon

16. Preparing and Delivering an Informative Speech

1. Chronological

- This type of method follows a time pattern procedure. Thus, it organizes facts, incidents, events, or

A. Important Event 1

B. Important Event 2

II. Music Entertainment in 1970-1980

A. Important Event 1

B. Important Event 2

2. Sequential

- This type of method is similar to the chronological method but differs in terms of the organization of

3. Spatial

- It organizes information based on how things appear in physical space, such as based on geography, floor

I. Parts of the First Floor

II. Parts of the Second Floor

III. Parts of the Third Floor

4. Cause and Effect

- This type of method follows the cause-effect relationship.

I. Poverty

II. Unemployment

Key terms

Informative Speech - crafted to offer stimulating and valuable information to a general audience or a particular

Below - features of informative speeches showing similarities and differences to other speech types:

Child labor - caused by the following factors: poverty, unemployment, and lack of education

17. Preparing and Delivering a Persuasive Speech

1. Introductory Phase

- In a persuasive speech, begin with a strong impression or feeling on a significant issue - a specific issue

2. Goal

- Your objective as the speaker is to convince your audience to agree with your arguments.

3. Audience

- It is important to have a strong awareness of your audience.

4. Voice

- Consider speaking with conviction and assurance but with sensible and unbiased remarks. This will help

5. Focus of Persuasion

- Facts used in an argument must be verifiable.

6. Value

- This is where you can argue on the right or wrong of a particular action or one is better or worse than the

7. Policy

- This focus of persuasive speech persuades the audience that actions should or should not be taken.

1. Ethos

- This offers the audience understanding of the speaker's appeal, credibility, and authority.

2. Pathos

- This shows the capability of a speaker to relate to his or her audience emotionally.

3. Logos

- It utilizes strategies of logic to convince the audience. In short, logos means persuading by the use of

A. Introduction

B. Distinction from Other Types of Speeches

- Standard persuasive speeches provide opinions on whether an action or something is harmless or

1. I will argue that cosmetic surgery has done more harm than good

2. I believe that all citizens should be required to participate in all elections

18. Preparing and Delivering an Entertainment Speech

1. Know Your Audience

Different kinds of audiences need different ways of being entertained.

2. Learn from Veteran Speakers

You will learn a lot by watching and listening to veteran speakers give entertainment speeches.

3. Understand the Available Techniques of Producing Entertainment and Humor

Puns - produce humor through the funny use of words.

4. Understand the Unacceptable Methods of Producing Humor

- This method is relegated to places that are not considered part of respectable society.

1. Prepare the backbone

- The backbone of your speech is composed of the main ideas of a narrative, informative, or persuasive

3. Write your thesis

- Turn it into your introduction by reexpressing it in a way that is entertaining to your audience.

4. Restate your thesis as your conclusion

- Your conclusion does not need to contain entertaining remarks.

5. Edit your speech for grammar and word use

1. Test your Delivery

- Practice delivering your speech to someone whose background is very similar to your target audience.

2. Make Use of Verbal and Nonverbal Language

- Verbal and nonverbal languages increase the possibility of entertainment.

3. Avoid Overused Routines

- Overused jokes, gestures, or other elements can bore your audience.