

PPG

Philippine Politics and Governance

Grade 12, Semester 1 study outline

A summary of section headings and key terms, made by students for revision. It is not the handout and does not replace it.

01. Introduction to Politics and Political Science

Introduction to Politics and Political Science

I. Introduction

- It comes from the word "polis" which means city-state.
- According to Plato and Aristotle, there are central concepts in politics: the concept of justice, the concept of power, the concept of the right types of constitutions and governments, the concepts of political structures, and the concept of the right and virtuous leadership.

1. Concept of justice - what and who is morally and politically right

2. Concept of power - source of authority

- Concept on the right types of constitutions and governments - different types of governments and states

4. Concepts on political structures - different ideologies in a state

5. Concept on the right and virtuous leadership - who should lead in a certain political system

- Politics - as an activity that involves the interaction of people, whose relationship is characterized by conflict and cooperation, and who come together to solve such disagreement through binding solutions.

B. Political Science - is a social science discipline

- It is a systematized body of knowledge based on facts that deal with experimentation and observation.

III. Major Schools of Thought in Political Science According to Heywood (2013)

A. Philosophical tradition (otherwise known as political philosophy)

- The Greek philosophers Plato and Aristotle are usually associated with this tradition as they asked what "should" or "ought" instead of what "is".

B. Empirical tradition

- Political scientists who advocate this approach believe that any account of political reality must be impartial and should thus be tested through observation.
- Those who work in this tradition therefore seek to analyze and explain, and not to offer recommendations, as in the philosophical tradition.

C. Scientific tradition

- The scientific tradition was further pushed with the rise of behaviorism or the belief that social theories should arise from observation and quantifiable data.

Key terms

Politics - born out of these social interactions. The word politics was formulated by the Greeks during the 4th and

02. Elements of State- Government and Governance

Elements of State- Government and Governance

I. State

- Garner, the state is "a community of persons more or less numerous, permanently occupying a portion of territory, independent from external control and possessing a government which the great body of inhabitants render habitual obedience" (as cited in Aruego's book - Principles of Political Science).
- The given definition consists of four elements of the state: population, territory, sovereignty, and government.
- But modern political science considers "recognition" as the fifth element of the State.

II. Five Elements of the State

- (According to Modern Political Science) 1) People - This is one of the basic elements of the state.
- Vatican City is the smallest city in the world and has the least number of people while China is considered as the biggest city and has the biggest population in the world.
- 2) Territory - Is the scope of land, sea, and air areas or boundaries where the population of the state resides.

3) Government - Is the machinery of the people where their hopes and aspirations are expressed,

- The government is the basic agency of the State to carry its obligation.
- 4) Sovereignty - Is the supreme power to command and enforce obedience (Aruego, Principles of Political Science).
- 5) Recognition - Is the process where the State is granted international status.

III. Government and Governance

- Government is defined as the group of people with the authority to govern a country or state, a particular ministry in office (Oxford Dictionary).
- It is the instrument of the state through which the will of the people is expressed, carried out, and formulated.
- Governance is defined as the process of decision-making and the process by which decisions are implemented.
- As an institution, it is the government that concretizes the policies and addresses the problems of the state.
- Good governance springs up when the government involves the people in its agenda and in the process of policy-making.
- The extent, therefore, to which democratic participation is encouraged determines whether governance exists. -- 1 of 2 -- According to UNESCO for Asia and the Pacific, the following are the characteristics of good governance: participation, rule of law, transparency, responsiveness, consensus-oriented, effectiveness...
- The citizens' satisfaction with their government is a determinant of governance.
- This only means that you are also part of governance.

Key terms

China - considered as the biggest city and has the biggest population in the world

Government - defined as the group of people with the authority to govern a country or state, a particular Governance - defined as the process of decision-making and the process by which decisions are implemented. At

03. Political Ideologies (Part 1)

Political Ideologies (Part 1)

I. Introduction

- It consists of belief and value systems, a discussion of existing power relationships, an exploration of how political change is achieved in line with these power relations and an illustration of a desired future .

II. MAJOR POLITICAL IDEOLOGIES AND THEIR KEY TENETS (Heywood 2013)

1. ANARCHISM

- - Political authority in all its forms, and especially in the form of the state, is both evil and unnecessary (anarchy literally means 'without rule'). - The sovereign, compulsory, and coercive authority of the state is seen as nothing less than legalized oppression operating in the interests of the powerful, proper...

2. CONSERVATISM

- - Tradition must be conserved.
- These traditions include established customs, institutions, and ways of doing things that have endured through time. - The belief in pragmatism highlights the limits of human reason.
- As a belief, pragmatism emphasizes that the action should be shaped by practical circumstances and goals. - Human imperfection presents the pessimistic view of conservatives on the individual. - Accordingly, individuals are morally corrupt and are therefore the sources of crime and disorder.
- Order could thus be achieved through a strong state. - Conservatives believe that society is an organic whole and is a living entity, more than being an artifact of human ingenuity.
- This belief is known as organicism. - Conservatives also believe that social position and status are only natural.
- With this, hierarchy is thought to be inevitable. - Authority must be exercised from above.
- Leadership is provided to guide and support those who lack knowledge and education and those who have little capacity to act for their own interest. - Conservatives look at property as significant because it is the individual's source of security and independence from the government.

3. FACISM

- - Ultrationalist ideology.

4. FEMINISM

- - A diverse but unifying theme is the desire to enhance the social role of women. - Society is characterized by sexual or gender equality. - The structure of male power must be overturned, hence the belief in gender equality. - Its strands include liberal feminism, socialist feminism and radical feminism.

5. LIBERALISM

- - Belief in individualism underscores the importance of the human individual compared to any other group. - The liberty of the individual must be protected.
- - An individual has freedom when he or she is able to act as he or she pleases. - Reason can lead individuals to make wise judgments, which could solve issues or differences. - Equality implies that individuals are born equal, at least in moral terms.
- - Equal rights and entitlements are at its core.
- - It must be noted, however, that liberals do not endorse social equality or equality of outcome. - Tolerance is the willingness of individuals to allow others to think and behave in ways they do not approve.
- - It is a guarantee of individual liberty. - Authority and social relationships must also be based on agreement and consent.

6. SOCIALISM

- - Belief in the community highlights the degree to which the individual is connected with others.
- - Identity is therefore a product of social interaction more than innate qualities. - Brotherhood or fraternity speaks of a shared common humanity Socialist thus prefer cooperation rather than competition and collectivity rather than individualism. - Socialists look at society in terms of differences in the distributi...
- - Social class is believed to be an important social cleavage, which divides societies. - The interests of the working class and the oppressed should be upheld.
- - Unlike private property, common ownership is a means to harness material resources for the common good.

In Political Ideologies an Introduction (6th

04. Political Ideologies (Part 2)

Political Ideologies (Part 2)

I. Ideology

- As a phenomenon, it is the mainspring of an individual's way of looking at politics and political life.

1. The sensations that people experience as they interact with the material world

2. The ideas that form in their minds due to those sensations

II. MAJOR POLITICAL IDEOLOGIES AND THEIR KEY TENETS (Heywood 2013)

1. MARXISM

- - Historical materialism or the materialist conception of history provides that the economy (mode of production) conditions all other aspects of social life- including law, government, politics and education. - The dialect, a process of interaction between competing forces, drives change and leads to a higher stage ...

2. SOCIAL DEMOCRACY

3. GREEN POLITICS/ ECOLOGISM

- - This ideology is linked with the emergence of the environmental movement.
- - It also rose as a revolt against industrialization. - It is concerned with the damages brought by economic development and by the declining quality of human existence. - Conventional ideologies are a vehicle of ecologism.
- - Ecosocialism looks at the destruction of the environment due to capitalism; ecofeminism traces this crisis to male power; and ecoconservatism links the cause of conservation to the desire to preserve tradition and institutions

4. COSMOPOLITANISM

- - Ideological expression of globalization - It is a belief in a cosmopolis or a world state.
-

05. Power

Power

I. Introduction

II. Nature of Power

- So, what's with this power that, literally, everybody seems to have grown insane for the love of power and that power must have become a part of man's social existence?
- Turner The standard theory is that power is the capacity for influence and that influence is based on the control of resources valued or desired by others.
- As per this definition of power, it is presupposed that for one to be empowered, he/she must be capacitated with the skills of influencing and persuading others and the know- how of coercion.
- Basically, one can only call the shots when he/she is able to persuade others, if done in a diplomatic manner, or has influenced them through a coercive manner or must have used force in the process.
- To explain this in the actual scenario, let us take our very own families where the head of the family would be able to impose a house rule, say about smoking, either by talking nicely to his children, for instance tell them about the negative effects of smoking in the most friendly way, or exert influence over them...
- Another description of the nature of power is the capacity of an individual to influence the actions, belief, or conduct (behavior) of others." This could be the more common nature of power which has become a part of the social construct.
- Because, more often than not we have always equated power with being able to have one over another person.

III. Dimension of Power

- Agenda- This refers to the motive of the person who wants to have power or the reason why one wants to be paced under the influence of another person.
- Decision-making- This refers to the end of the person seeking for power, where he has to have influence over others because they are vital to whatever decisions he would be making inherent to his status or position. -- 1 of 2 -- 3.
- Manipulation- This is from the means of who holds the power and it refers to the controlling factor over the other person and which means that the former can make the latter do whatever he wishes, whether in legitimate or illegitimate means.

IV. Types of Power

- Legitimate power- This is the type or kind of power which is oftentimes referred to as positional power.
- There is a legal and formal basis for the acquisition or delegation of power to a certain individual and there are relative positions and duties and responsibilities.
- A classic example of this type of power is the executive power as exercised by the President of the Philippines, where PRRD obtained it through the national elections held way back in 2016.

Congress of the Philippines

- For one, the so-called "charisma" or a very enterprising inherent personal characteristic is the Indicative factor of referent power.
- Expert power- From the word itself, this type of power presupposes the expertise or special knowledge one has to capacitate him/her to exert influence over another person.
- Coercive power- The word coercive denotes negativity, however, sometimes, this kind of power is deemed necessary to make other people obey laws or directives or to prevent an unnecessary action.
- Reward power- This type of power refers to the capacity of the power-wielder to offer or extend a reward or to recompense an accomplishment.
- A very good example is when your parents buy you a new pair of trendy shoes because you have been doing the household tasks assigned to you.

V. Consequences of Power

06. Globalization

Globalization

I. Introduction

II. Globalization in the Philippines

- Also, the shift of the 10 years curriculum in Basic education Curriculum to K to 12 program is an outset of global requirement.

III. Features of Globalization

- What are the characteristics of globalization as a phenomenon?

1. Declining relevance of geographical distance;

2. Lessening significance of territorial boundaries

III. Forms of Globalization

Several forms of globalization can be identified, of

- The following are the forms and examples of globalization: 1.
- There is an increasing interdependence of world economies as a result of the growing scale of cross-border trade of commodities and services, flow of international capital and wide and rapid spread of technologies.

IV. Effects of Globalization as to Economy

- There are other effects of globalization in other aspects but it is your assignment to search for those ones.
- We focus on economic aspect because it controls all the effects of globalization in every State.

V. Effects of Globalization in Developed States

- Developed countries are the markets of Multinational corporations which in turn MNCs are required to purchase or ask them to buy domestic products from domestic suppliers.
- They cannot be forced by external economic forces, besides they are the ones controlling economic forces.
- However, along with this is the depletion of natural resources and destruction of the environment is much likely.

VI. Effects of Globalization in Developing Countries

Key terms

Developed countries - markets of Multinational corporations which in turn MNCs are required to purchase

07. History of Philippine politics and governance

History of Philippine politics and governance

I. Introduction

- It is a tool for self - study.

II. Pre-Colonial Period

- He said that there were in the Philippines no large states, nor even great rajas and sultans such as were found in the Malay Archipelago, but instead on every island were a multitude of small communities, each independent of the other and frequently waging war.
- Examples of small communities were the Chiefdoms of P'u-tuan(Butuan), Ma-i (Mindoro), Sulu, Maguindanao, Cebu, and etc.
- These small communities are called and organized as Barangay (Balangay) and Sultanate, with about thirty to one hundred families.
- For example, the chieftain is the one responsible in decision making covering all aspects (social, cultural, spiritual, and political) that affects their communitlife.
- The responsibility of decision making means it covers the power of Executive, Legislative, and Judiciary.
- EXECUTIVE BRANCH - Is the branch of the government that executes Laws.
- LEGISLATIVE BRANCH - Is the branch of the government that creates Laws.
- JUDICIARY BRANCH - Is the branch of the government that interprets the Laws including its penalties if it was obstructed or disobeyed.

Two Units of Government

Branch

Central

Government Executive Governor -

General Appointed by the King

2. Power to appoint

4. Administrator of the

Marianas,

Palaus

5. Chief justice/

President of the

Royal Audiencia

Court)
Judiciary Royal
Audencia
Court)
Stands as the Supreme Court of the Philippines during the Local Government
Executive Province,
Cities,
Towns,
Pueblo
Province have two

Key terms

He - helped, of course, by community elders and cultural/religious leaders/Masters

08. Executive branch

Executive branch

I. Introduction

- This means that each of the branches has its own powers and responsibilities, and that each is expected to work in its own sphere.

II. Executive Power

Public

Official

Qualification Manner of

Election

Term of Office

2. A registered

3. Able to read

4. At least 40

5. A resident of

Philippines for at

The president

The person

Six years The

Vice

President

Six years The

- vice -- 1 of 2 -- least 10 years immediately preceding his or her election number of votes (plurality method) shall be elected. president shall not serve for more than two successive terms Should there be any questions pertaining to the election, the Supreme Court shall be the one to settle questions about the elect...

- As provided by Article VII, Section 4: "The Supreme Court, sitting en banc, is the sole judge of all contests relating to the election, returns, and qualifications of the President or Vice President." The Supreme Court serves as the Presidential Electoral Tribunal The presidential election is held on the second Mond...

- This is an issue of presidential succession and the constitution also has provisions regarding such circumstances.

III. Powers of the President

IV. Checks on the President's Power

Key terms

Executive power - roughly defined as the power to implement laws in one country. If the legislature's task is to

09. Legislative branch

Legislative branch

I. Introduction

- The Philippines is a republic with a presidential form of government wherein power is equally divided among its three branches: executive, legislative, and judicial.
- One basic corollary in a presidential system of government is the principle of separation of powers wherein legislation belongs to Congress, execution to the Executive, and settlement of legal controversies to the Judiciary.
- As a HUMSS practitioner, these principles of co-equal and coordinate powers of the three branches of the government will enlighten you in dealing with the ideals of democracy and fairness.

II. Legislative power

- The Congress of the Philippines is the country's highest law making body. a.

1. Natural-born citizen of the Philippines;

2. At least thirty-five years old;

3. Able to read and write;

4. Registered voter; and

5. Resident of the Philippines for not less than two years before election day

1. Natural-born citizen of the Philippines;

2. At least twenty-five years old;

3. Able to read and write; and

- All provinces in the country are composed of at least one congressional district.

III. Legislative process

- These resolutions can further be divided into three different elements: Joint resolutions - require the approval of both chambers of Congress and the signature of the President, and have the force and effect of a law if approved.
- Concurrent resolutions - used for matters affecting the operations of both chambers of Congress and must be approved in the same form by both houses, but are not transmitted to the President for his signature and therefore have no force and effect of a law.
- Simple resolutions - deal with matters entirely within the prerogative of one chamber of Congress, are not referred to the President for his signature, and therefore have no force and effect of a law.
- Here are the various steps in the passage of a bill: 1.
- If the President does not communicate his veto of any bill to the House where it originated within 30 days from receipt therefore, it shall become a law as if he signed it.

IV. Other responsibilities

- 3. Congress can revoke the President's proclamation of martial law by a vote of at least a majority of all members of the Senate and the House.

Key terms

Congress - responsible for making enabling laws to make sure the spirit of the constitution is upheld in the Bills - laws in the making. They pass into law when they are approved by both houses and the President of the

10. Judiciary branch

Judiciary branch

I. Introduction

- The judicial branch of the Philippines comprises the Supreme Court, which is set up in the Constitution, and three degrees of lower courts, which are set up through law by the Congress of the Philippines.
- It further decides the principles of methodology for lower courts, and its individuals sit on constituent councils.
- Beneath the Supreme Court is the Court of Appeals, which likewise has a public degree with various divisions situated in various areas of the country.
- Choices from this court must be spoken to the Supreme Court.

- Beneath this level are Regional Trial Courts, which are spread all through the country among legal areas.
- Underneath these courts are the principal level Metropolitan and Municipal Trial Courts, which are situated in urban communities and regions all through the country.

II. Regular courts

- The Supreme Court (SC) is the most elevated court of the land and is the court after all other options have run out.
- This force is a reaction to a past time of military law during which the courts regularly declined to act against the Executive.
- Investigative influence over different issues can be expanded by the Philippine Congress in concurrence with the court. -- 1 of 3 -- The Court of Appeals (CA) is an appellate collegiate court in the Philippines.
- The Court of Appeals consists of 1 Presiding Justice and 68 Associate Justices.

The following are the first level courts

Metropolitan Trial Courts (MeTC)

Cases that handle in first level courts

III. Special courts

- Some courts have been created by law to deal with specific types of cases, with their rulings restricted to this specific jurisdiction.

Sandiganbayan - the people's advocate

Court of Tax Appeals

Sharia District Courts (ShDC)

Military courts

Official Gazette of the Republic of the Philippines

Key terms

Beneath the Supreme Court - Court of Appeals, which likewise has a public degree with various divisions

Cases involving the military - handled by civil courts, except when the offense is determined to be service-

11. Local government unit

Local government unit

I. Introduction

- In one area, above provinces and independent cities, is an autonomous region, the Bangsamoro Autonomous Region in Muslim Mindanao.

II. Levels of local governments

Barangay

- This is the smallest administrative division in the Philippines and is the native Filipino term for a village, district, or ward.
- In metropolitan areas, the term often refers to an inner city neighbourhood, a suburb, or a suburban neighborhood.
- The word barangay originated from balangay, a kind of boat used by a group of Austronesian peoples when they migrated to the Philippines.

Municipality

- This is a local government unit (LGU) in the Philippines.
- A municipality is called town in its archaic term: a municipality has the function of a town since its inception.
- It is distinct from the city, which is a different category of local government unit.

Class Average annual income

First At least 55,000,000

Second 45,000,000 - 54,999,000

Third 35,000,000 - 44,999,000

Fourth 25,000,000 - 34,999,000

Fifth 15,000,000 - 24,999,000

Sixth At most 14,999,000

City

- -- 1 of 3 -- This is one of the units of local government in the Philippines.

Creation of cities

Legal classification

Province

Classification

Class Average annual income

First 450 million or more

Sixth below 90 million

Autonomous region of the Philippines

- is a first-level administrative division that has the authority to control a region's culture and economy.
- Currently, Bangsamoro, which largely consists of the Muslim-majority areas of Mindanao, is the only autonomous region in the country.

III. Responsibilities

IV. Decentralization

- While political decentralization involves devolution of powers, administrative decentralization focuses on deconcentration of functions.
- These include: (1) devolution which essentially is the transfer of power for the performance of certain functions from the national or central authorities to the lower levels of governments, e.g., local governments; and (2) deconcentration which, essentially, is the process of delegating functions from the central g...
- 7160 . https://lawphil.net/statutes/repacts/ra1991/ra_7160_1991.html The Constitution of the Republic of the Philippines.(n.d) www.gov.ph -- 3 of 3 --

Key terms

- Provinces - classified according to average annual income based on the previous 4 calendar years. Effective July

12. Suffrage

Suffrage

I. Introduction

- This is because through the exercise of suffrage, citizens can participate in the establishment and administration of government Thus, it includes election, plebiscite, referendum, initiative and recall.

II. Scope of Suffrage

III. Types of Suffrage

- Suffrage may therefore be limited, but can still be universal. -- 1 of 2 -- - Compulsory Suffrage Where compulsory suffrage exists, those who are eligible to vote are required by law to do so.
- Thirty-two countries currently practice this form of suffrage.

IV. Types of Election

- ARTICLE V SUFFRAGE Nature of Suffrage.https://www.academia.edu/34238330/ARTICLE_V_SUFFRAGE_Nature_of_Suffrage Types of Suffrage <https://nigerianscholars.com/tutorials/electoral-systems-and-processes/types-of-suffrage/> -- 2 of 2 --

13. Political parties in the Philippines

Political parties in the Philippines

I. Introduction

- A political party is an organization that coordinates candidates to compete in a specific country's elections.
- In a broader definition, political parties are the entire apparatus that supports the election of a group of candidates, including voters and volunteers who identify with a particular political party, the official party organizations that support the election of that party's candidates, and legislators in the govern...

II. Party systems

United States

- - Multi-party system: a system in which multiple political parties have the capacity to gain control of government offices, separately or in coalition.

III. Political parties in the Philippines

- The first Philippine political party, established in 1900, was the Federal Party, which advocated peace and eventual statehood.
- The left-wing People's Party (Partido Ng Bayan), which supports the political objectives of the NPA, was a minor party in the elections.
- The Philippines has a multi-party system with numerous political parties, in which no one party often has a chance of gaining power alone, and parties must work with each other to form coalition governments for political expediency and convenience.
- There are three types of parties in the Philippines.

Key terms

Political parties - collective entities that organize competitions for political offices. The members of a political

14. Civil Society and Social movements

Civil Society and Social movements

I. Introduction

- They are known to champion issues of the marginalized members of the society, such as issues on human rights, labor rights, environmental protection, and poverty.

II. Civil society history

III. Social Movement

- Social movement was defined by Mario Diani as "a distinct social process, consisting of the mechanisms through which actors engaged in collective action .
- The three main characteristics of social movements are as follows: 1.
- They are involved in some kind of conflict (cultural or political) with another identified opponent (another group, program, system, or idea) to promote or oppose social change .
- The group is made of "dense informal networks" wherein rules within the group and the actions of the group are not standardized but are constantly negotiated by the actors.

IV. Civil society and Social Movements in the Philippines

- Our country is a witness to a massive social movement after the lifting of Martial Law in 1981 and the assassination of Senator Benigno Aquino Jr. in 1983.
- It was a successful movement that ousted the then President Ferdinand Marcos who had been holding on to power for almost 20 years.

V. Types of Civil society

Key terms

Civil society organizations - basically non-government members of society that promote the interest of the
Our country - witness to a massive social movement after the lifting of Martial Law in 1981 and the Cooperatives - groups or joint (business) enterprises that aim to provide profit or services for its

15. Citizenship

Citizenship

I. Introduction

- It also entails that the person is under the law of the country.
- This means that as a citizen of the Philippines, you enjoy the rights and privileges provided by the laws of the country; however, you have responsibilities to take to enjoy these rights and privileges.

II. Meaning of citizenship and citizen

- (1) Citizenship is a term denoting membership of a citizen in a political society, which membership implies, reciprocally, a duty of allegiance on the part of the member and duty of protection on the part of the State. (2) Citizen is a person having the title of citizenship.
- He is a member of a democratic community who enjoys full civil and political rights, and is accorded protection inside and outside the territory of the State.
- To be a Filipino citizen, a person must belong to any of the classes of citizens.

III. Distinguished from nationality and nationals

- We can, therefore, say that the nationals of a state include not only its citizens who enjoy full civil and political privileges but also all others who are not its citizens, but because they owe allegiance to it, are not regarded as aliens.
- Meaning of subject and alien. (1) A citizen is a member of a democratic community who enjoys full civil and political rights. In a monarchical state, he is often called a subject. (2) An alien is a citizen of a country who is residing in or passing through another country.

IV. General ways of acquiring citizenship

V. Citizens by birth

- There are two principles or rules that govern citizenship by birth, namely: (1) Jus sanguinis.- Blood relationship is the basis for the acquisition of citizenship under this rule.
- This is the predominating principle in the Philippines. (2) Jus soli or jus loci. - Place of birth serves as the basis for acquiring citizenship under this rule.
- It does not mean though that the principle of jus sanguinis is not likewise recognized.

Citizens at the time of the adoption

- 1 (1)) - The citizens referred to are those considered Filipino citizens under the 1973 Constitution at the time of the effectiveness of the new Constitution on February 2, 1987 by virtue of Proclamation No.
- 58 of the President. - The purpose of Section 1(1) is to protect the status of those who were already citizens at the time the new Constitution took effect.
- However, it is not the intention of the Constitution to legalize the status of those who acquired their citizenship through fraudulent means.

VI. Citizens by blood relationship. (Art. IV Sec. 1(2))

- - The Philippines, in accordance with Section 1, paragraph 2, follows the principle of jus sanguinis.
- In the determination of the citizenship of the child, Filipino mothers are placed by the constitution on equal footing with their husbands.

VII. Citizens through election under the 1935

- 1 (3)) - Under the 1935 Constitution, a child born of a Filipino mother, who was married to a foreigner, is born an alien and remains an alien during his minority until he elects Philippine citizenship. - Prior to such election, he has an inchoate right to Filipino citizenship.
- If he is born after the ratification of the 1973 Constitution on January 17, 1973, he is a citizen under Section 1, paragraph 2 thereof, making the children of a female citizen Philippine citizens without having to make an election.
- In the latter instance, he is a citizen from birth. - The rule then, as it is now, is that a Filipina does not lose her citizenship by her marriage to an alien. (Sec.
- 4.) However, it was not clear whether those who had elected citizenship under the 1935 constitution, (having been born before the effectivity of the 1973 Constitution on January 17, 1973) are to be considered as natural-born Filipino citizens.

VIII. Citizens by naturalization. (Art IV. Sec. 1 (4))

- In the contemplation of the Constitution, even those who are not Filipino citizens at birth and who cannot take advantage of the right given to the children of Filipino mothers, may become citizens by naturalization.
- In other words, citizenship may not be based on the principle of jus sanguinis. -- 2 of 3 -- Meaning of natural born and naturalization.

Natural-born are those who do not need to perform

Naturalization is the act of formally adopting a foreigner

VIII. Philippine citizenship may be lost or reacquired in

- IV Sec 3) - Expatriation refers to the voluntary loss or renunciation of citizenship. - Expatriates are those who voluntarily lost or renounced their citizenship.
- Repatriation is the reacquisition of one's nationality by taking the necessary oath of allegiance.

IX. Dual allegiance of citizens is inimical to the

- national interest and shall be dealt with by law. - Dual allegiance refers the continued allegiance of naturalized nationals to their mother country even after acquiring Filipino citizenship. - Dual citizenship refers to the possession of two citizenships by an individual.

Key terms

- Citizenship - more than having an affiliation to a certain country and government, in our case, the Republic of the
- Natural-born - those who do not need to perform

16. Roles of Citizenship

Roles of Citizenship

I. Introduction

II. Duties and obligations of citizens

- As a special being, a citizen is part of society, and, therefore, has social responsibilities.
- Among others, the more important duties and obligations of every citizen in a democratic society are enumerated and briefly explained below. (1) To be loyal to the Republic. - By loyalty, we mean faith and confidence in the Republic and love and devotion to the country. - Pride in one's country. - citizens must be p...
- He must share in its glories and feel sad in its misfortunes, " It is the "home of our people, the seat of our affections, and the source of our happiness and well-being. - Absolute and permanent allegiance to his government. - A citizen owes, not a qualified and temporary, but an absolute and permanent allegiance w...
- He must not commit any act of disloyalty, such as treason, rebellion, sedition or other similar act.
- It is not an occasional virtue to be exhibited now and then; it is a fame that should be kept constantly aglow in our hearts.
- It means an unflinching determination to serve and defend one's country at all times and at all costs." - Readiness to sacrifice his life in defense of his country.-The citizens receive benefits and protection from the State of which they are a part.
- 3.), and be ready to sacrifice and due for it if necessary. (3) To contribute to the development and welfare of the State.
- The development and welfare of the State should -- 1 of 3 -- be the concern of every citizen for he will be the first to enjoy the benefits thereof.
- They are a part of society to which they owe definite responsibilities.
- They should all be working for the common good and thereby "build a just and humane society." Paraphrasing US President John F.
- Kennedy, they should ask not what the country can do for them, they should rather ask themselves what they can do for their country. (4) To uphold the Constitution and obey the laws.-The Constitution is the expression of the sovereign will of our people.
- It is the shrine for all the hopes and visions for our nation.

Key terms

Constitution - expression of the sovereign will of our

17. The Good citizen- Attitudes and Civic virtues

The Good citizen- Attitudes and Civic virtues

I. Introduction

II. Citizen attitudes

- Citizens can be apathetic, self-centered, ideological or altruistic, or democratic.
- In contrast, citizens who are deeply invested in the realization of both their own and society's needs are practicing a democratic form of citizenship.

III. Citizen Civic virtues

- In terms of civic virtues, Galston listed four types of civic virtues of citizens that are required for a flourishing democracy.
- Taken together to reflect responsible citizenship, these civic virtues include:

1. General virtues: courage; law-abidingness; loyalty

2. Social virtues: independence; open-mindedness;

III. Citizenship in different political contexts

- -- 1 of 2 -- Nonetheless, while these civic virtues are important to the functioning of modern democracies, it begs us to ask whether and how governments can promote and guarantee these civic virtues of citizens.
- How should governments ensure that citizens are active rather than passive; critical rather than deferential or apathetic in the face of injustice; responsible rather than greedy or short-sighted; tolerant rather than prejudiced or xenophobic?

- How should governments ensure that citizens feel a sense of membership in and belonging to their political community, rather than alienation and disaffection?
- How should governments ensure that citizens identify and feel solidarity with co-citizens, rather than indifference or hatred towards others?
- How citizens exercise their rights as citizens and to what extent governments promote civic virtues of citizens vary between different types of political systems and societies.

Citizenship in Different Political context

Assumption

Common sense of

Political

Maximum use of

Minimal

Enthusiastic mass

Purpose of

Maximize individual

Preservation of

Achievement of ideal

Educational

Development of

Distinction

Politicization of whole

Political

Knowledge and

Deference from

Indoctrination and

18. Political Engagement and Youth Empowerment

Political Engagement and Youth Empowerment

I. Introduction

II. Political Engagement: From the Streets to the Screens

- A series of consultations by the National Youth Commission (NYC) found that a primary challenge for Filipino youth is a lack of meaningful involvement and influence in community and local affairs.
- Often, the youth are not included in crucial stages of program development, such as project identification, planning, and evaluation.

III. Youth Empowerment: A Framework for Action

- The World Bank notes that nearly 50% of the world's population is under 25, creating a "youth bulge." Viewing this demographic as a passive "reserve" for the future workforce is a detrimental approach.
- We must recognize that: (1) the youth possess immediate assets like energy, creativity, and digital literacy; and (2) when meaningfully involved, they are a powerful force for community and national development. -- 1 of 3 -- Meaningful involvement goes beyond simple invitations or lectures.
- It can be understood through four increasing levels of participation: 1.

4. Initiating Action: The youth themselves identify a problem, design a solution, and lead its

Putting Empowerment into Practice

- Here are some updated examples of how youth can actively participate: - Create mental health support groups or peer-to-peer counseling programs in school. - Organize or join environmental actions like coastal clean-ups, community gardening, or sustainable living workshops. - Leverage digital skills to practice criti...
- This includes: Creating fact-based content (videos, podcasts, infographics) to combat disinformation on social media.
- What are the structural challenges (e.g., budget constraints, lack of training, influence of local dynasties) that young leaders face?
- Research and highlight examples of effective SK councils that have launched successful projects in areas like environmental protection, youth employment, digital literacy, or mental health awareness.

IV. References