

UCSP

Understanding Culture, Society and Politics

Grade 12, Semester 1 study outline

A summary of section headings and key terms, made by students for revision. It is not the handout and does not replace it.

01. Introduction to Culture, Society, and Politics

Introduction to Culture, Society, and Politics

I. Introduction

II. Anthropology, Sociology, and Political Science

- This is a very difficult concept for many to understand because society quite literally makes people believe that their conceptualizations and interpretations of their surrounding world is correct.
- It could refer to small villages, a country as a whole, or even a whole linguistic/religious group.
- Society essentially refers to how a larger system runs, focusing on the human components.
- Anthropology - It is a comparative science that examines all societies.
- The term anthropology means scientific study of man or human beings.

The Four Subfields of Anthropology

- The Four Subfields of Anthropology

1. Archaeology deals with prehistoric societies by studying their tools and environment

- Sociology - Sociology is the study of human social relationships and institutions.
- Political scientists provide information that helps us understand the nature and characteristics of authority and power distribution and how it shapes the way society is organized. - Areas of Political Science 1.
- Public Administration - Examines how the government functions and how the decisions and policies are made.

III. What is the importance of Studying the Subject?

02. Introduction to Culture, Society, and Politics

Introduction to Culture, Society, and Politics

I. Introduction

II. Anthropological Perspectives

- These include: cross-cultural or comparative emphasis, evolutionary/historical emphasis, ecological emphasis and holistic emphasis.
- Holistic approach - It is the assumption that any given aspect of human life is to be studied with an eye to the way it is related to other aspects of human life.
- In other words, holism is a synonym for a relational emphasis; an emphasis upon studying the /relationships/ among all aspects of culture-rather than "whole" cultures. -- 1 of 2 --

III. Sociological Perspectives

- Simply stated, "A theory is a statement of how and why specific facts are related"

A. Structural Functional Approach

B. Symbolic - Interaction Approach

- This theoretical orientation is considered a micro-level approach, which is an individual level approach.

C. Conflict Approach

- Society is composed of unequal distribution of desired resources that benefit a minority at the expense of the majority.
- Those that do not have the resources are always creating new ways to acquire resources; hence this approach views society in constant conflict.

IV. Political Science Perspectives

- An example is the study of democracy as a form of government and why is democracy considered as the best form of

03. Culture and Society

Culture and Society

I. Introduction

II. Definition of Culture and Society

- The essential difference is that society is composed of people while culture consists of knowledge, ideas, customs, traditions, folkways, mores, beliefs, skills, institutions, organizations, and artifacts.
- Society is the combination of people with different cultures.
- Society is a group of people living collectively.
- For instance, manifestations of culture include language, arts, music, festivals, literature, etc.
- Meanwhile, examples of a society include villages, cities, districts, municipalities, religious groups, professional organizations, educational institutions, and the like.
- Culture refers to how people behave and interact with one another within social institutions. -- 1 of 3 -- For example, in the United States, people shake hands to greet one another.
- In France, a common type of greeting people is cheek kissing, In Korea or Japan, the traditional greeting is bow.

III. Characteristics of Culture

1. Culture is an Adaptive Mechanism

- The fact that cultural evolution can occur faster than biological evolution has significantly modified the effect of natural selection on humans.

2. Culture is Learned

- It is also not biological in nature which means that it is not something that is physically or genetically inherited.

3. Culture is Shared

4. Culture is Integrated

5. Culture is adaptive and dynamic

- As such, this also means that culture constantly changes especially when cultures come in close contact with others.

6. Culture is abstract

- There is no single tangible manifestation that can take the form of culture itself.

7. Culture is symbolic

- Characteristics of Culture. https://www2.palomar.edu/anthro/culture/culture_2.htm Department of Sociology.

Key terms

Culture and society - co-existent. one does not or cannot exist without the other. Culture and society may have Society - combination of people with different cultures. On the other hand, Culture deal with the Culture - considered an adaptive mechanism because it provides behavior patterns, strategies, and techniques
Cultural parts and aspects - interconnected in that when taken together, a way of life is manifested. When
Because culture - abstract, societies have developed a way by which concepts and ideas existing in the mind

04. Culture

Culture

I. Introduction

- What are the rules when you pass an acquaintance at school, work, in the grocery store, or in the mall?
- These examples are all aspects of culture, which are shared beliefs, values, and practices that participants must learn.

II. Elements of Culture

- Material culture refers to the physical objects, resources, and spaces that people use to define their culture.
- These include homes, neighborhoods, cities, schools, churches, synagogues, temples, mosques, offices, factories and plants, tools, means of production, goods and products, stores, and so forth.
- Non-material culture refers to the nonphysical ideas that people have about their culture, including beliefs, values, rules, norms, morals, language, organizations, and institutions.

- For instance, the non-material cultural concept of religion consists of a set of ideas and beliefs about God, worship, morals, and ethics.

III. Variations/Concepts of Culture

A. Subculture

B. Counterculture

IV. Classification of Culture

- It is important to understand that although culture is a system of ideals for behavior, there are instances when members of a society do not conform to it.

A. Ideal Culture

- It Refers to cultural guidelines publicly embraced by members of a society.

B. Real Culture

- Refers to the actual behavior of people in the society in their daily lives.

V. Vital Components of Culture

1. Symbols

Symbols are illustrations used to represent a particular

- An example of Cultural Symbols is the Swastika symbol.
- The Swastika Symbol is a geometrical figure and an ancient religious icon in the cultures of Eurasia.
- It is a symbol of DIVINITY and SPIRITUALITY in Hinduism, Buddhism, and Jainism.

ANTISEMITISM AND TERROR

2. Language

- It is a set of symbols that enables members of society to communicate verbally (spoken) and non-verbally (written/gesture).

3. Values

4. Norms

- Norms are the rules defining appropriate & inappropriate behavior or the rules we live by.
- Once norms are learned, members of a society use them to guide their social behavior. -- 2 of 3 -- There are 3 basic types of Norms: Folkways, Mores, and Laws.

A. Folkways

- They are the common customs of everyday life - shake hands when introduced to someone; if male, you remove your hat in church; get to class on time, do your homework, etc.

B. Mores

- Are norms that have great moral importance and should be followed by members of a society.
- Taboo - rule of behavior, the violation of which calls for strong punishment. (Although definitions of incest vary from society to society, the incest taboo (forbidding sexual contact with close relatives) is generally regarded as the only taboo present in all societies).

C. Laws

Key terms

Symbols - illustrations used to represent a particular

Language - probably the most obvious aspect of any culture - it allows us to create culture. The use of language is

Norms - rules defining appropriate & inappropriate

Even important norms - applied selectively - killing another person is applied differently to the military and the

05. Orientations in Viewing Other Cultures

Orientations in Viewing Other Cultures

I. Introduction

II. Ethnocentrism

- Ethnocentrism is the term anthropologists use to describe the opinion that one's own way of life is natural or correct.
- Ethnocentrism means that one may see his/her own culture as the correct way of living.
- For those who have not experienced other cultures in depth can be said to be ethnocentric if they feel that their lives are the most natural way of living.

- Chopsticks are the main utensils in China, Korea, Japan, and Vietnam and users regard them as superior to Western ones, but for example they are only used for noodles in Thailand, Malaysia and Indonesia.
- Another example of ethnocentrism is colonialism.
- Colonialism refers to the social system in which the political conquests by one society of another leads to "cultural domination with enforced social change".
- A good example to look at when examining colonialism is the British overtake of India.
- In order to avoid such awful things like those we must all try to be more culturally relative.

III. Xenocentrism

- This is called Xenocentrism.
- Xenocentrism is a culturally-based tendency to value other cultures more highly than one's own, which can materialize in a variety of different ways.

IV. Cultural Impact of Xenocentrism

C. Wright Mills, The Sociological Imagination, Oxford University Press, 1961, ISBN 0195133730

Key terms

Ethnocentrism - term anthropologists use to describe the opinion that one's own way of life is natural or Chopsticks - main utensils in China, Korea, Japan, and Vietnam and users regard them as superior to Colonialism - social system in which the political conquests by one society of another leads to "cultural Xenocentrism - culturally-based tendency to value other cultures more highly than one's own, which can

06. Cultural Relativism and Multiculturalism

Cultural Relativism and Multiculturalism

I. Introduction

- The Cross-Cultural Relationship is the idea that people from different cultures can have relationships that acknowledge, respect and begin to understand each other's diverse lives.
- People with different backgrounds can help each other see possibilities that they never thought were there because of limitations, or cultural proscriptions, posed by their own traditions.
- The threat is that once the relationship occurs, one can no longer claim that any single culture is the absolute truth.

II. Cultural Relativism

- Cultural relativism is the ability to understand a culture on its own terms and not to make judgments using the standards of one's own culture.
- There are two different categories of cultural relativism: Absolute: Everything that happens within a culture must and should not be questioned by outsiders.
- The extreme example of absolute cultural relativism would be the Nazi party's point of view justifying the Holocaust.
- Because men only wanted women with small feet, even after this practice was banned in 1912, women still continued to do it. -- 1 of 2 -- To Western cultures the idea of feet binding might seem torturous, but for Chinese culture it was a symbol of beauty that has been ingrained in the culture for hundreds of years.

III. Multiculturalism

- Multiculturalism is an ideology that acknowledge and promote cultural diversity within society.

IV. Cultural Sensitivity

- Cultural sensitivity refers to being aware that cultural differences and similarities between people exist without assigning them a value.

Some people are accustomed to certain

- 617-30. "Health and Human Rights", World Health Organization http://www.who.int/hhr/HHRETH_activities.pdf (pdf)

Accessed June 2009

Key terms

Cultural relativism - ability to understand a culture on its own terms and not to make judgments using the Culture - seen as an important element in building social capital and could also lead to future conflicts and

07. Identity and Personality Formation

Identity and Personality Formation

I. Introduction

- Because some people thought that Identity and Personality are the same entities.

II. Personality vs. Identity

- Identity involves our understanding of who we are, anchored on school core values, and the roles we play in society.
- However, while we take on different roles, our core character and integrity must remain consistent.
- In other words, Personality is the body you have, and identity is the clothes you wear.

III. Determinants of Personality Formation

1. Biological Inheritance

- Refers to the transmission from parents to offspring through the mechanisms of genes found in the chromosomes of the sex cells comprising the biological structures, psychological process, reflexes, urges, capacity, intelligence, and traits such as pigmentation and stature.
- In a word, such traits must be nurtured as a person grows to develop them to the fullest.

2. Geographic Environment

3. Cultural Environment

- It refers to the learned ways of living, the norms of behavior- folkways, mores, laws, values, ideas, and partnered ways of Group.

4. Social Environment

- Refers to the various groups and social interactions going on in the groups of which one is a member according to Panopio .
- The structure and size of the group and the kind of social relations and interactions influence the child's personality formation.

08. Humanization and Homogenization

Humanization and Homogenization

I. Introduction

II. Homonization

- Homo Habilis - known as 'handyman' is a species of the genusHomo which lived from approximately 2.1 to 1.5 million years ago, during the Gelasian Pleistocene period.
- It is the Homo habilis nonetheless that people owe their first relics of tools, anthropologists suggest.

1) Homo Sapiens Neanderthalensis (240-40)

2) Homo Sapiens Sapiens (c. 300-Present)

III. Humanization

We have discovered the relation of biological human

- Humanization is the long process of improving the humans' everyday living through innovation, discovery, enhancing routines, and creating mechanisms with the intention of harmonizing and harnessing the fullest potentials of their fellow human beings.

A. Preindustrial Societies

1. Hunter-Gatherer

- Hunter-gatherer societies demonstrate the strongest dependence on the environment of the various types of preindustrial societies.

2. Pastoral Society

3. Horticultural Society

4. Agricultural Society

- Farmers learned to rotate the types of crops grown on their fields and to reuse waste products such as fertilizer, which led to better harvests and bigger surpluses of food.
- New tools for digging and harvesting were made of metal, and this made them more effective and longer lasting.

5. Feudal Society

B. Industrial Society

- -- 2 of 3 -- In the eighteenth century, Europe experienced a dramatic rise in technological invention, ushering in an era known as the Industrial Revolution.
- What made this period remarkable was the number of new inventions that influenced people's daily lives.

C. Postindustrial or Information Societies

- Information societies, sometimes known as postindustrial or digital societies, are a recent development.
- Digital technology is the steam engine of information societies.
- Social classes are divided by access to education, since without technical skills, people in an information society lack the means for success.

Key terms

Evolution - not a thing of the past and is continuing even now. Humans are undergoing 'natural selection' for

Humanization - long process of improving the humans' everyday living through innovation, discovery

Digital technology - steam engine of information societies. Since the economy of information societies is

Social classes - divided by access to education, since without technical skills, people in an information society

09. Socialization, Statuses, and Roles

Socialization, Statuses, and Roles

I. Introduction

There are various opinions on how environment

- Significant number of anthropologists, such as Franz Boas, Ruth Benedict, Margaret Mead, and Edward Sapir argued that among the determinants that affect one's personality, cultural environment is the main factor that determines human behavior.

II. Socialization Process

- Socialization is a lifelong process.

A. Primary Socialization - Your first experiences

- An example of Primary Socialization is your Family.

1. Anticipatory Socialization

2. Gender Socialization

3. Race Socialization

- It is the process through which children learn the behaviors, values, and attitudes associated with racial groups.

4. Class Socialization

III. Statuses and Roles

- Status is our relative social position within a group, while a Role is the part our society expects us to play in a given status.

A. Achieved and Acquired Statuses

- Ascribed statuses are the result of being born into a particular family.

B. Social Roles

- Once the word social is added, it is a broader view.

Key terms

Racial discrimination - partly the result of what parents teach their children about members of other races

Roles - duties performed by individuals depending on context. Once the word social is added, it is a broader

10. Agents of Socialization

Agents of Socialization

I. Introduction

II. Social Group Agents

1. Family

- Family is the first agent of socialization.

- As you are aware, either from your own experience as a child or from your role in helping to raise one, socialization includes teaching and learning about an unending array of objects and ideas.

2. Peer Groups

- A peer group is made up of people who are similar in age and social status and who share interests.

III. Institutional Agents

- -- 1 of 3 -- The social institutions of our culture also inform our socialization.

1. School

- Students are not in school only to study math, reading, science, and other subjects-the manifest function of this system.

2. Work

- Different jobs require different types of socialization.

3. Religion

- Religion is an important avenue of socialization for many people.

4. Government

- To be defined as an "adult" usually means being eighteen years old, the age at which a person becomes legally responsible for him- or herself.
- Each time we embark on one of these new categories- senior, adult, taxpayer-we must be socialized into our new role.
- Seniors must learn the ropes of Medicare, Social Security benefits, and senior shopping discounts.

5. Mass Media

Key terms

- Family - first agent of socialization. Mothers and fathers, siblings and grandparents, plus members of an
 - Students - not in school only to study math, reading, science, and other subjects-the manifest function of this
-

11. Social Processes

Social Processes

I. Introduction

- Social processes are the ways in which individuals and groups interact, adjust and readjust and establish relationships and patterns of behaviour which are again modified through social interactions.
- The concept of social process refers to some of the general and recurrent forms that social interaction may take.
- Interaction or mutual activity is the essence of social life.
- Interaction between individuals and groups occurs in the form of social processes.
- Social processes refers to forms of social interaction that occur again and again.

II. Types of Social Processes

A. Enculturation

- This process is the way in which we obtain and transmit culture.
- This social process is defined as the manner by which a person learns or adopts the culture followed by his/her co-members in a society.

B. Acculturation

- Acculturation is the process in which a person adapts to the influence of another culture by borrowing many of its aspects.
- According to Powell , it refers to the psychological changes stimulated by cross-cultural Imitation.
- This is an example of a person acculturated to another while maintaining his/her mother culture.
- Another example is an overseas Filipino worker (OFW) in a foreign country.
- To survive working in a foreign environment, the OFW must learn how to adapt to the new culture, through keeping the Filipino culture in his/her way of living, such as eating Filipino food, bonding with other Filipino OFWS, and the like.

C. Assimilation

- If acculturation implies immersion in another culture while maintaining one's mother culture, assimilation is a complete or almost total adaptation of the minor culture to the major one. -- 1 of 3 -- In assimilation, an individual learns a new culture, tending to lose entirely his/her previously held cultural identity.

- One example of Assimilation is that most Filipinos that migrate to Canada adapt the Canadian culture when he/she becomes a full-pledged Canadian.

D. Cooperation

- Eldredge defined cooperation as "a form of social interaction wherein two or more persons work together for a common end or purpose." As Panopio and Raymundo stated, it is a central feature of social life.

E. Differentiation

- Differentiation is the process of designating each member of a society with particular functions and roles intended for the society to achieve stability and order, thus, the increased number of social units.
- These communities are composed of experts, technocrats, and think-tanks from various fields that provide specific services for the varying needs of the people.

F. Amalgamation

- Cultural amalgamation is a term that refers to two or more cultures blending together to create a new, unique culture.
- It promotes acculturation and assimilation and is the opposite of differentiation since it reduces the number of social units.
- The Association of Southeast Nations (ASEAN) is a manifestation of this social process.

G. Stratification

- Social stratification refers to a society's categorization of its people into rankings of socioeconomic tiers based on factors like wealth, income, race, education, and power.
- Society's layers are made of people, and society's resources are distributed unevenly throughout the layers.
- On the other hand, those who are living in public places, such as bridges, railways, and the sidewalks, are called "Informal settlers".

H. Conflict

- Conflict is an ever present process in human relations. -- 2 of 3 -- It has been defined by A.
- Green "as the deliberate attempt to oppose, resist or coerce the will of another or others." According to Gillin and Gillin, "Conflict is the social process in which individuals or groups seek their ends by directly challenging the antagonist by violence or threat of violence." As a process, it is the antithesis of ...
- According to Coser, Conflict is a struggle over values and claims to scarce status, power, and resources." Conflict can be seen in many groups.

I. Competition

- On the other hand, Competition is the struggle between two or more persons or groups that can be translated to innovation in the long run.
- Competition is the most fundamental form of social struggle.
- According to Sutherland, Woodward and Maxwell "Competition is an impersonal, unconscious, continuous struggle between individuals or groups for satisfaction which, because of their limited supply, all may not have." In the words of Biesanz "competition is the striving of two or more persons for the same goal which i...

Key terms

Social processes - ways in which individuals and groups interact, adjust and readjust and establish Interaction or mutual activity - essence of social life. Interaction between individuals and groups occurs in the Acculturation - process in which a person adapts to the influence of another culture by borrowing many of its
 Differentiation - process of designating each member of a society with particular functions and roles intended
 Society's layers - made of people, and society's resources are distributed unevenly throughout the layers. The Conflict - ever present process in human relations
 Almost any human action - likely toward the hopes or interferes with the plans of someone else. Such action

12. Political-Leadership Structures and Social Control

Political-Leadership Structures and Social Control

I. Introduction

II. Political and Leadership Structures

A political organization or political organization is any

- organization that involves itself in the political process, including political parties, non-governmental organizations, advocacy groups and special interest groups.

- The different kinds of Political Groups are: Bands, Tribes, Chiefdoms, and States.
- They Live autonomously and are composed of small kin which hones their Hunting and gathering is their typical way of life.
- Social order is achieved through informal public opinion in the forms of gossip and avoidances.
- A band is the smallest unit of political organization, consisting of only a few families and no formal leadership positions.
- Already have a form of social and political structure characterized by a community leader.
- It is based on Power, and is a hierarchy (usually of a tribe or group of similar tribes in a particular area, who all recognize the same authority, king or chief / chieftain.) D.
- State is a community of persons.
- It is a human political -- 1 of 3 -- institution.
- A "State" is an institution that holds sovereignty over its citizens.

III. Social Control

- It is a necessary part of social order, for societies could not exist without controlling their Populations.
- Motorists know that they should not drive through stop signs or red lights, though some do anyway.
- Pedestrians know that they should not run out into the middle of the street, though jaywalking is fairly common.
- There are two types of Social Control: 1.
- Informal social control involves conformity to the norms and values of society as well as adoption of a belief system learned through the process of socialization.
- This form of social control is enforced by family members and primary caregivers, teachers, coaches, peers, and colleagues.
- Reward often takes the form of praise or compliments, good grades, job promotions, and social popularity.
- Punishment tends to involve relationships ending, teasing or ridicule, poor grades, being fired from work, or withdrawal of communication.
- In many cases, a simple police presence is enough to achieve this form of control.
- In others, police might intervene in a situation that involves unlawful or dangerous behavior to stop the misconduct and maintain social control.

IV. Conformity

- Conformity involves changing your behaviors in order to "fit in" or "go along" with the people around you.
- In some cases, this social influence might involve agreeing with or acting like the majority of people in a specific group, or it might involve behaving in a particular way in order to be perceived as "normal" by the group.
- Essentially, conformity involves giving in to group pressure. "Through external means of control, individuals conform because an authority figure threatens sanctions if the individual disobeys." Nuncio, R., Morales-Nuncio, E., and Artuz, R., Praxis: Understanding Society, Culture, and Politics, Books atbp Publishin...

Key terms

Hunting and gathering - their typical way of life. Social order is achieved through informal public opinion in the State - community of persons. It is a human political

Social control - achieved through social, economic, and Without it, chaos and confusion would reign

13. Democratization, Human Dignity, Rights, the Common Good, and Education

Democratization, Human Dignity, Rights, the Common Good, and Education

I. Introduction

- It no longer means direct lawmaking by all citizens, but rather choosing leaders who represent us.
- While majority rule is important, democracy also protects the rights of minorities.
- It is guided by values such as life, freedom, and fairness-values that no group, even a majority, should be allowed to violate.

II. Democratization

- This type of democracy is called a direct democracy.
- This practice evolved to more complicated ideals which led to the type of societies which people such as the Filipinos, have at present.

III. Human Dignity, Rights, and the Common Good

A. What is a Political Community?

- A political community is made up of a government that is accountable to its citizens, and citizens who live under its laws.

B. Human Dignity

- Human dignity is an individual or group's sense of self-respect, self-worth, and physical and psychological integrity and empowerment.
- It also means living with integrity, staying true to your values, and not settling for less than what is right in important matters.
- Examples of Living with Human Dignity: - Leaving a job where you're not treated well. - Ending a relationship that makes you feel unsafe. - Helping someone in need. - Standing up for what's right. - Saying no to things that go against your values or make you uncomfortable.

C. Human Rights

- Human rights are the basic rights every person has, simply because they are human.
- Examples of Human Rights: - Right to Life - Right to Education - Right to Speak - Right to Equal Treatment - Right to Religion - Right to Privacy - Right to Fair Trial - Right to Safety - Right to Work - Right to Vote

D. Common Good

- Working for the common good means making choices that benefit everyone, not just a few.
- When we create laws or programs, we must ask if they truly help people or just serve personal or political interests. -- 2 of 3 -- The Filipino value of pakikipagkapwa reminds us to act with compassion and fairness.

IV. Education

- Most people equate education with schools, but there is a huge difference between these two.
- Education refers to the various ways through which knowledge is passed on to the other members of the society.
- This knowledge can be in the form of factual data, skills, norms, and values.
- There is formal education (or schooling) which refers to the complete educational ladder all children must go through from childhood up to adulthood.
- And then there are the alternative forms which are not controlled by the government (often called private education, indigenous education, informal learning, and self-directed learning).
- With the advance of the internet, a new form of education has emerged: open education through online courses.

Education as a Human Right

- Many international conventions such as the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights, the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination Against Women, and the Convention on

2. Many children around the world still do not have access to even basic primary education

Key terms

- Human dignity - individual or group's sense of self-respect, self-worth, and physical and psychological integrity
- Human rights - basic rights every person has, simply because they are human. In the Philippines, these

14. Groups and Variations

Groups and Variations

I. Introduction

II. Group

- The term group is broad and can refer to a wide range of gatherings-from just two people (such as a "group project" in school with a partner), to a club, a regular circle of friends, coworkers, or people who share a common hobby.
- For a true group to exist, there must be ongoing interaction and a shared sense of belonging.
- Examples of primary groups include families, close friends, peers, neighbors, classmates, sororities, fraternities, and church communities.
- A family or a barkada are common examples of primary groups.
- A classroom or office can be an example of a secondary group. -- 1 of 2 --

III. In-Groups and Out-Groups

- In sociology and social psychology, an in-group is a social group a person identifies with and feels a sense of belonging to.

- An out-group, by contrast, is a group the individual feels separate from-sometimes with feelings of rivalry, distrust, or even hostility.
- In short, an in-group is the group that an individual feels they belong to and believes is an important part of who they are.
- The best example of an in-group is something like a club, a church, or a school.
- An out-group is the opposite of an in-group.
- It is a group that a person does not identify with or belong to.
- For example, if you are a student of Golden Faith Academy (GFA), students from another school may be seen as part of the out-group-especially if there is a school rivalry or a strong sense of school pride.

IV. Reference Group

- A reference group is a group that people use as a standard for evaluating themselves.

15. Economic Institutions and Activities

Economic Institutions and Activities

I. Introduction in Economic Institutions

II. Reciprocity

- It refers to the voluntary giving or taking of objects without the use of money in the hopes that, in the future, they could be given back.
- Reciprocity could take the form of barter, hospitality, gift-giving, and sharing.
- In societies, however, reciprocity means more than just a simple social activity.
- The aim of engaging in reciprocity is to build and strengthen social relationships as well as acquire more means or favors.
- A good example of reciprocity is the Filipino culture of utang na loob.
- This is an act of kindness or favor that is expected to be given in return.
- There are three types of Forms of Reciprocity: Generalized, Balanced, and Negative.
- Generalized Reciprocity - The main feature of generalized reciprocity is the exchange of goods and services without a definite time frame of when the favor should be returned.
- A good example of this is your relationship with your family and closest friends.
- Nevertheless, all human populations experience this form of reciprocity.
- Balanced Reciprocity - Exchange occurs between groups or individuals with the donor expecting to receive something of equal or similar value.
- This form is usually motivated by the desire to acquire a large number of goods using minimal resources.

III. Transfers and the Government

- Also known as government transfers or transfer payments, transfers refer to the redistribution of income or wealth by the government, where no direct goods or services are exchanged in return.
- This means that recipients are not required to give anything back in exchange for the support they receive.
- In the Philippines, transfer payments are commonly seen in the form of social welfare programs such as pensions for senior citizens, cash grants for low-income families, unemployment benefits, and educational subsidies.
- These differ from public services like roads or schools, which are used collectively by the public.
- Examples include the 4Ps (Pantawid Pamilyang Pilipino Program), disability benefits, and financial aid for students.

IV. Redistribution

- Unlike reciprocity, which involves a direct and mutual exchange between parties, redistribution channels resources through a central body before they are returned to the community.
- The collected goods often pass through levels of authority-such as local leaders or officials-until they reach storage.

V. Types of State According to Market Roles

- There are at least three types of states depending on their role or relationship to the market, namely: the laissez-faire state, the interventionist or developmental state, and the welfare state.

A. Laissez-Faire State

- Laissez-faire is derived from French words that mean "to leave alone." According to the principle of laissez-faire, the economy functions best when the government does not intervene through regulations, subsidies, privileges, and other types of intervention.
- The laissez-faire state, therefore, completely does not have any role in managing the market.

B. Interventionist or Developmental State

- The developmental or interventionist state is a state that intervenes in the market and sets the direction and pace of economic development.
- In these types of states, the state and the market are closely intertwined, and their relationship is managed by a special bureau or department that coordinates the developmental efforts of the state on the economy. -- 2 of 3 --

C. Welfare State

- Examples of programs of the welfare state are the provision of health services, low-cost housing, and basic education.
- Various forms of state-market relationships can bring about different effects on the lives of the citizens in a country.
- Some states are a combination of these types.

Key terms

- Economic institutions - organizations or systems responsible for the production and distribution of goods and
 - Laissez-faire - derived from French words that mean "to leave alone." According to the principle of laissez-faire
-

16. Systems of Stratification

Systems of Stratification

I. Introduction

- Global stratification refers to the hierarchical arrangement of individuals and groups in societies around the world.
- Socioeconomic status (SES) is a measure of a person's position in a class structure.
- It is often influenced by differences in wealth, as material resources are not distributed equally across all levels of society.

II. Perspectives on Stratification

- Thus, stratification based on levels of physical attractiveness is analyzed as a micro-level process.

III. Theories of Macro-Level Inequality

- Slavery is a system in which people are bought and sold as property, forced to work, or held in captivity against their will.
- Slavery is a system under which people are treated as property to be bought and sold, and are forced to work.

Types of Slavery

- Chattel slavery, people are treated as the personal property, chattels, of an owner and are bought and sold as commodities, is the original form of slavery.
- It is the most widespread form of slavery today.
- It is also used as a general term to describe all types of slavery and may also include institutions not commonly classified as slavery, such as serfdom, conscription and penal labor.
- Caste is an elaborate and complex social system that combines some or all elements of endogamy, hereditary transmission of occupation, social class, social identity, hierarchy, exclusion, and power.
- Social class refers to the grouping of individuals in a stratified social hierarchy, usually based on wealth, education, and occupation.
- Class is an object of analysis for sociologists, political scientists, anthropologists and social historians.

1. Class in Marxist Theory

- In Marxist theory, the class structure of the capitalist mode of production is characterized by two main classes: the bourgeoisie, or the capitalists who own the means of production, and the much larger proletariat (or working class) who must sell their own labor power for wages.
- For Marxists, class antagonism is rooted in the situation that control over social production necessarily entails control over the class which produces goods-in capitalism this is the domination and exploitation of workers by owners of capital.

2. Weberian Class

- Weber theorized that class position was determined by a person's skills and education, rather than by their relationship to the means of production.
- Weber introduced three independent factors that form his theory of stratification hierarchy: class, status, and power: class is person's economic position in a society; status is a person's prestige, social honor, or popularity in a society; power is a person's ability to get his way despite the resistance of others.
- While these three factors are often connected, someone can have high status without immense wealth, or wealth without power.

The Common Three-Stratum Model

- Contemporary sociological concepts of social class often assume three general categories: a very wealthy and powerful upper class that owns and controls the means of production; a middle class of professional or salaried workers, small business owners, and low-level managers; and a lower class, who rely on hourly wa...
- Capitalism also takes advantage of gender inequality.

Sexism

- Sexism can refer to three subtly different beliefs or attitudes: the belief that one sex is superior to the -- 2 of 3 -- other; the belief that men and women are very different and that this should be strongly reflected in society, language, and the law; the simple hatred of men (misandry) or women (misogyny).
- Some people believe that women should have equal access with men to all jobs, while others believe that while women are superior to men in a few aspects, in most aspects men are superior to women.
- Sexist beliefs are an example of essentialist thought, which holds that individuals can be understood (and often discriminated against) based on the characteristics of the group to which they belong-in this case, their gender.

Key terms

Global stratification - hierarchical arrangement of individuals and groups in societies around the world
Caste - elaborate and complex social system that combines some or all elements of endogamy, hereditary Class - object of analysis for sociologists, political scientists, anthropologists and social historians. However
Sexism - discrimination against people based on their sex or gender, and can result in lower social status for Sexist beliefs - example of essentialist thought, which holds that individuals can be understood (and often

17. Social Mobility and Change

Social Mobility and Change

I. Introduction

- Social change refers to significant shifts in the structures, norms, and values of a society over time.

II. Social Mobility

- Social mobility refers to the movement of individuals or groups from one social position to another over time.
- While it is most often associated with changes in wealth and social status, it can also involve shifts in health, education, literacy rates, or other indicators within and among groups such as social classes, ethnic communities, or even nations.
- However, it can also take the form of horizontal mobility, where individuals shift roles or occupations within the same social level, such as moving from one profession to another of similar status.

III. Types of Social Mobility

1. Horizontal Social Mobility

- Horizontal social mobility refers to a change in position within the same social level or rank.
- The new role may differ in function, but it typically involves a similar level of difficulty, responsibility, and social status.

2. Vertical Social Mobility

- Vertical social mobility is of particular interest to sociologists because it involves a shift from one social class to another.
- This type of mobility can be upward, such as when a former working student from a state university becomes a successful engineer, or downward, such as when someone loses their job and falls into a lower economic class.

A. Intergenerational Mobility

- This refers to a change in social position between generations within a family.
- For example, if a man works as a factory worker but his daughter becomes a lawyer, this upward shift from working class to professional class is an example of intergenerational mobility.

B. Intragenerational Mobility

- -- 1 of 3 -- This refers to a change in an individual's social position over the course of their own lifetime.

IV. Social Change

A. Technology

B. Social Institutions

C. Population

- Population composition is changing at every level of society.
- Family planning is a large step in ensuring that families are not burdened with more children than they can care for.

D. The Environment

V. Modernization

- Is modernization always positive?
- The morass of information means that there is as much poor information available as trustworthy sources.
- There is a delicate line to walk when core nations seek to bring the assumed benefits of modernization to more traditional cultures.
- Additionally, there can be a kind of neo-liberal defense of rural cultures, ignoring the often crushing poverty and diseases that exist in peripheral nations and focusing only on a nostalgic mythology of the happy peasant.
- 2014. "350.org." Retrieved December 18, 2014 (<http://350.org/>).
- 2007. "Parents: Cyber Bullying Led to Teen's Suicide." Retrieved December 18, 2014 .
- 2011. "Record Year for Billion Dollar Disasters." CBS News, Dec 11.
- 2014. "The Extinction Crisis.

Key terms

Social change - significant shifts in the structures, norms, and values of a society over time. These changes

Social mobility - movement of individuals or groups from one social position to another over time

While it - most often associated with changes in wealth and social status, it can also involve shifts in health

Horizontal social mobility - change in position within the same social level or rank. For example, if a

Vertical social mobility - of particular interest to sociologists because it involves a shift from one social class to

Population composition - changing at every level of society. Births increase in one nation and decrease in another

18. Social Challenges, Contradictions, and Tensions

Social Challenges, Contradictions, and Tensions

I. Introduction

- What is tension? "It is one or more forms of disturbance caused by a group of people.
- Civil disturbance is typically a symptom of, and a form of protest against, major socio-political problems; the severity of the action coincides with public expression(s) of displeasure.
- Examples of civil disorder include, but are not necessarily limited to: illegal parades; sit-ins and other forms of obstructions; riots; sabotage; and other forms of crime.
- More frequently, the cause of such issues is related to economic stagnation, severe inflation, devaluation of currency, disasters man made or natural, severe unemployment, oppression, political scandal, or, in some countries, sporting events.
- So the level of social tension can show the business atmosphere, such information is very important for making right decisions in business strategy." To summarize, any sense of social injustice may lead to tension.

II. Forms of Social Tension

Researchers propose several possible explanations for the

- Even when risks of punishments are taken into account, illegal methods of gaining assets may provide better returns than legal means of obtaining resources. -- 1 of 3 -- Third, a wide gap between rich and poor tends to increase crime by reducing law enforcement spending in low- income areas.
- Ethnic conflict, a form of conflict in which the objectives of at least one party are defined in ethnic terms, and the conflict, its antecedents, and possible solutions are perceived along ethnic lines.
- Terrorism - There is an old saying that "one person's freedom fighter is another person's terrorist." This saying indicates one of the defining features of terrorism but also some of the problems in coming up with a precise definition of it.
- The same type of action is either terrorism or freedom fighting, depending on who is characterizing the action.
- Some include the following:

1. Religion

2. Oppression

3. Historical Grievances

4. Violations of International Law

5. Relative deprivation
6. Hatred of Global Economic Hegemony
7. Financial Gain
8. Racism
9. Guilt by association
10. Supporting sympathizers
11. Mortality Salience
12. Narcissism
13. Sensation-seeking
14. Failure of conventional channels of expression
15. Communication and publicity

III. Responding to Social, Cultural, and Political

A. Changes have occurred in the course of time?

B. What is the Impact of Technology on Our Society?

- -- 2 of 3 -- How has technology affected society?
- When we speak of the impact of technology on society, we always talk about the positive effects of technology and about how technology has made life easy.
- Think of the days when there were no computers and no modern means of transport.
- Daily life involves a lot of physical activity.
- There is a certain kind of enjoyment in achieving things after striving for them.

Key terms

- Civil disturbance - typically a symptom of, and a form of protest against, major socio-political problems; the
- Contradictions and tensions - natural in a society of diverse people and culture